

Week of January 27th Shithin Feedback.

- This morning I updated you about a new plan for a child. We had a chat about it and you asked questions. You can comprehend information well.
- You are reflective. You tell me moments about certain children and how you learned and how they learned.
- I gave you direction about helping in the cubby area and helping put out beds and tables. You know what to do and it is helpful to the whole room.
- Later I asked you to be part of the larger group outside. You were flexible with that direction.
- Later you helped a child that needed support to go for an early rest. It went really well. I was close by if you needed me but you were able to help the child calmly and successfully.

Thursday

- I really appreciate hearing your continued observations of the children.
- We have had some good ~~g~~ conversations.
- You came on a winter mountain walk. You observed and helped the children. I went over what I usually say to the children about limits and boundaries.

We both reflected on how sometimes we as educators may give too many reminders or speak too much, I agree sometimes we do. But also in some situations we continue with the reminder for safety.

- You have a kind and thoughtful personality and fit in really well with this group and the educators.

Friday - was busy - Thank you for all your help!!!

-Noelene